increase in the coal trade of Pennsylvania, particularly in the Schuylkill region, it is almost impossible to tell what the increase from one year to another may be. The most extravagant estimates have heretofore been exceeded, and the consumption increases so rapidly that the supplies can hardly keep pace with the demand. The annexed statement exhibits the quantity of anthracite coal sent to market from the different regions in Pennsylvania, from the commencement of the trade in Pennsylvania, from the commencement of the trade in 1920 to 1845, inclusive, with the annual increase. Should twenty-five years, it appears evident that all the works siness. In the transportation of coal railroads must from the expedition and economy with which they carry

In 1820, only 355 tons were sent to market. In 1830, the quantity had reached 174,734 tons; in 1840, 865,414 tons; and in 1845, 2,021,674 tons. The trade has more than doubled within the last five years. The supplies of coal from the Schuylkill region are more than half of the aggregate receipts from all sources Of the 1,083,795 tons of Schuylkill coal received in 1845, 514,279 tons were transported by the Reading Railroad to the sea-board. The location of this road, its immense facilities for carrying coal, and the immense amount of coal that must hereafter offer for transportation, will, in a very short time, give it a business that will pay a handsome dividend upon the capital stock of the Company, as large as it is.

It appears by the recent report that the in-

LATEST INTELLIGENCE BY THE MAILS.

The news which we have received from the capital, is of a very interesting character. Our readers are referred to our correspondence and reports. Judge Woodward has been rejected by the Se-

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20, 1846. Oregon-Free Trade-A new Revolution upon the Carpet, &c., &c.

If the news by the Hibernia should confirm the favorable symptoms of a repeal of the corn-laws, there will be an entire revolution in the division of parties upon the Oregon question. The compromise there will be an entire revolution in the division of parties upon the Oregon question. The compromise party will become the administration party—the Walker party, the reduction of the tariff party—in fact, the democratic party, and even Gen. Cass and Mr. Allen, will be brought to terms.

The recent action of the whig convention in Connecticut, upon the Oregon question, confirms the deep laid plan as we surmised, of Mr. Adams, in his unequivocal and otherwise mysterious position upon the disputed territory dispute.

The motion of Mr. Allen, which will be made on Friday next, pursuant to his notification in the Senate coday, to renew the effort to introduce into the Senate his resolutions against foreign interference in the affairs of this continent, will lead, perhaps, to a trifting debate, and ascomplete a defeat of the proposition, should it be admitted upon the ground of courtesy, as the honorable Chairman on Foreign Relations could desire.

We renew our declaration that perseverance in his proposition will but strengthen the position of Mr. Calhoun, and establish the sagacity—the foresight—the statesman-like views of our international affairs, as regarded by the great Carolinian.

The election of Mr. Calhoun to the Senate will, therefore, probably result in the preservation of the peace, in the escape from a national bank, a national debt, a national pension list, and a national batch of military heroes—in the reduction of the tariff, in a great market and good prices for our surplus produce, in our continued onward progress in the arts, sciences, wealth, population, territory, honor and moral influence, and in the triumphant vindication of the claims of Mr. Calhoun to the Presidency, as the "bravest of the brave," as the great pilot in the dark hour and through the breakers by which we are now surrounded. God send us a happy deliverance.

The House, to-day, were engaged in the Florida contested election. The discussion may be continued for a day or two, in expectation of the conclusive news anticipated by with that country and this.

The recent news of a change of ministry in England, has not altered very much the previous opinions of public men here upon the leading questions at issue between the British government and ours. Mr. Calhoun's friends would fain make us believe that it is a sort of olive branch held out by them for the settlement of the Oregon difficulties. Such an opinion is vain and delusive. The cause of the resignation of Sir Robert Peel was a difference of opinion with the Duke of Wellington upon the opening of the ports, or free trade question, and not in reference to the Oregon Territory. It was a mere question of local politics, and not of foreign relations. In my opinion there is more to fear from the new ministry than the old, as they may urge on a war with this country, for the double purpose of getting the ports open, and of keeping themselves in power, in spite of the opposition of the landed interest, in both Houses of Parliament, to a reduction of the duty on grain. As it is, no safe conclusion can be arrived at until after the meeting of Parliament, and then before anything can be done on that question, the Queen may find it necessary to dissolve Parliament, and appeal to the people for their decision. Either a revolution, or the dissolution of Lord John Russell's government, must take place in that country, before many months. Things are approaching a dreadful criais in England, between the starving millions and over-fed and bloated aristooracy.

This change of ministry in a few days, may remove some of the difficulties to an amicable settlement of our dispute upon the Oregon question; but of that I am doubtful. I know that no change will take place here on what it has already done. The President is anxious, and sincerely so, to terminate the joint occupancy—and those who assert the contrary, do him great injustice. He goes in for the "whole of Oregon, or none," and is willing to stake his honor and reputation upon the principles laid down in his message.

Mr. Allen did not call up the next Presidency all the time! What had Senator Allen done to provoke such a fling as this at his innocent head! And then to see how Berrien chuckled, and how Evans laughed, and how Archer enjoyed the scene! and how old John M. Clayton tried to blow his nose to prevent himself from "snickering right out!" Why, it was too bad. It even drew a smile from Webster, who is never supposed to smile, unless, like Mephistophi les, he sees there is mischief brewing among the brethren in the church. And Calhoun, he was so busy writing all the with, as scarcely to hear Allen's scornful repetitions of "masterly inactivity!" Why, sir, if we may adulge in a vulgar old sphorism, "there is the by devil to pay, and no pitch hot." he next Presidency all the time! What had Briefly, the debate in the Senate of this day shows that there is a division in the camp—a breach which is wideaing and subdividing into fragments. What the effect of the Hibernia news may be in healing this division we can't say, but we hope for the best.

Levee at the President's to night. The unusual music of sleigh-bells, heard in all the principal streets.

The trees in the capitol park presented a beautiful spectacle this evening at sunset, glittering in their frost work, as if covered with diamonds, or as chrystalized by a fairy's wand. And they crackled in the wind like a hail storm in a cane brake. But the debate in the Senate to-day was richer than all this. It was decidedly rich and revelatory.

I leave for Richmond in a few days, where I shall continue the series of letters upon Mexico, that at present are exciting much attention here. Your numerous corps have picked up, I'll warrant, all the gossip going—and the field being dry, I shall try and attend to affairs of deeper moment, for the patriotic purpose of serving this my alma patrie, your tonjour, cher Empereur.

Washington, Jan. 20, 1846. The District Attorney's Death-The Small Pox-

Public Alarm-The Father Donelan's Christian Conduct-Vaccination-Dr. Lane of the House of Representatives Busy, &c., &c.
Our esteemed fellow citizen, James Hoban, Esq.,
the District Attorney for this district, died last night, after a short sickness, at his residence. The official like are notigoing on, the staid congregational example of the great father at the white house to the contrary notwithstanding.

We are apprised that the Committee on the Judiciary in the Senate, reported in Executive Session to-day against the nomination of Judge Woodward, and that considerable discussion was had upon the personal fitness of Mr. Slidell for the mission to Mexico. The executive session lasted for nearly three hours.

Washington, Jan. 21, 1846.

I am surprised that you should quote the Union as authority against the statements of your regular correspondents, after all the faux pas which that pa per has committed upon public affairs, as well as upon the views of the President upon similar sub-Jects. You cannot have forgotten its assertion that the 49th deg. was not offered to Mr. Pakenham, whilst the President's message gave it a flat denial. You do not torget its assertion that Woodward was confirmed, whilst the committee to whom his nomina-tion has been referred, have not yet reported upon tion has been referred, have not yet reported upon it. You certainly have not forgotten its denial, on Monday week, that despatches were received from Mr. Slidell, while Mr. Buchanan was writing answers to them. You do not lorget the pompous statement that it put forth, a few months back, that this government would never make to Mexico any proposition for the settlement of our difficulties with her, whilst it had actually sent Mr. Slidell to that government with propositions to adjust them; but who could not do so for the want of full powers, which the Senate invested him with on Tuesday last. After all these instances of misinformation, on the part of the "organ," how can you set its authority against that which has been proved by subsequent events, to be correct from the first? I am not aston ished at the want of information on important questions exhibited by the Union, as I am disposed to believe the President to be one of those men who piques himself upon the tact with which he conceals from every one about him matters of a private nature. Your correspondents, who mingle much with out-door society, catch glimpses of these things as soon as the President himself; and hence the relisance that ought to be placed upon their statements, when they appear in your columns days and weeks in advance of the government organ.

The rumor that has been circulated here that Gen. Cass and Senator Allen have purchased the United States Journal, is without the least foundation in truth. I have the most positive assurance from competent authority for saying that it is not so. I find the following copy of a letteraddressed to the Secretary of State circulating here. I give it for what it is worth:—

New Youx, January 6th, 1846.

How. James Buchanas, Secretary of State.

Dean Secretary of State. it. You certainly have not forgotten its denial, on WASHINGTON, Jan. 22, 4 P. M.

The President's Soirée-New York Pilots, &c., &c.

There was a soirée at the President's mansion last night, and it was attended by crowds of ladies, Senators, ministers, representatives, officers, clerks, &c. Among the ladies was the widow of that great scholar and eminent statesman James Madison. Mrs. Madison is almos: a relict of a former age :

Women love her, that she is a woman More worth than any man; man, that she is That rarest of all women." She talked for hours with her friends, and appeared to relish a hearty laugh as well as a lass of eighteen. Mrs. Madison, supported by the arm of the President of the United States, walked in the East

President of the United States, walked in the East room for some time, without any apparent exhaustion. I think she will live for several years to come. Beauty shone in satin, and in pink, and in pink in the state of lowing, could be frequently heard:—"Who are those two lovely ladies conversing with that Frenchman?" "They are the daughters of Mr. R——, of Virginia." "Who is that tall gentleman with white flowing locks, and what lady is that by his side?" "They are the Vice President and his daughter." "And do you see that grave gentleman with grey hairs, and high intellectual forehead, who is almost a prototype of General Jackson ?" That is Hon. S. Strong, of New York; the lady at his right is his wife, the one on his left his beautiful and accomplished daughter." And indeed the last named was one "Whose beauty did astonish the survey Of richest eyes; whose words took all ears captive." There is about six inches et snow here, and we have an unusual jingling of bells in the Avenue.—The sleigh riders must improve the opportunity, for the day is warm, and the snow is fast melting away.

I perceive that the Cowier & Enquirer and Jour-the day is warm, and the snow is fast melting away.

I perceive that the Courier & Enquirer and Journal of Commerce, of yesterday, state that the letter bag brought by the ship Liberty contained government despatches. Hear what says the official—the Union of last evening:—

"Some of the New York papers speak of despatches for the government having been brought in the letter bag of the ship Liberty, which brought the last news from England. We can hear of no despatches or papers being received at the department in Washington."

The Courier & Enquirer and the Journal of Commerce, are about as near the truth in this matter as they are in their accusations against New York pilots. The gentlemen of both these papers, knowing that the Herald is at all times their successful rival, do all they can to injure it; but they expose their own intrigue:—

So full of artless jealousy is guilt.

It spills itself in fearing to be spilt."

The Senate were in executive accasion to-day.

The House were engaged in discussing the right of Mr. Cabell, of Florida, to his neat. Mr. Cabell and Mr. Brockenborough spoke.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22, 1846 Mr. Allen has again been circumvented. His no tification on Tuesday last, that on Friday he should attempt again the introduction of his resolutions declaratory of the principles by which the United States would be governed in relation to the interference of foreign powers in the affairs of the indepen-dent nations of America; all of them, from Behrring's Straits to Cape Horn-that notification was set aside to-day by the Senate's adjourning over to Monday next. Now, it is our opinion that Allen was aware of the habit of the Senate in adjourning over from Thurshabit of the Senate in adjourning over from Thursday to the next week, for the first month of two of the session, and of the certainty of such an adjournment this week, when he gave the notice that on Friday he should move to take up his question of leave from the table. His object was, perhaps, to appeal hereafter, that his final defeat upon those most valliant resolutions was not a fair and conclusive defeat, but an evasion, on the part of his adversaries, by adjourning over several days, including the day of his appointment, for a new trial surging the members. He must have another chance.
